

Priyanka, again?

WE have a Priyanka in the USA, and now we have one in Japan. What's more, this one is a Miss World to boot. Crowned in 2016, Yoshikawa is travelling to India to explore the eastern Himalayas. She is apparently drawing attention to the rich bio-cultural heritage of the two countries, and was part of seminar that was held in Guwahati on Monday. Of particular interest to her are the welfare of communities that live in forests and the lost habitats of Asian elephants. The half Japanese, half Indian lady is an "Indian at heart", and is excited about her visit. She will be travelling through Assam.
